00:00:00:00I'll let you in on a secret: I am a fan of RPGs. There, I said it.I love playing them, I like writing them and I always try to make them good.The reality is that not all games are worth playing as a whole. Instead, if you are to play them, you would be wise to only get the experience and character you are truly looking for. Avoid the RPG games that you get in the beginning and walk away from the ones that to you are just the same as something you have played before.Of course, that's all well and good when you are passionate about something you are playing, but when you don't really care, then what?Is good quality RPG creativity still something that will rub you the wrong way? Well, get your lantern and look for the lantern-maker within. By the way, I am speaking of Tarnished.That's a pretty significant word.

00:00:01:05I love to look at new Rpgs but I have to say with all the titles that I have played lately, that are being so overly developed that I am kind of tired of it.

00:00:02:16The gaming world really was a puddle of mud.It seemed the least worthy of it.Any game played, is going to be flawed.It doesn't matter if it is a fun game, like IMSAI7, that puzzles you to give you the wrong results as puzzle puzzle teuuvontt, or a boring game, like Death, which you need to die to do anything, or a game that takes too long for the time invested.Even when you think you will click a hot-button and shock yourself (as does Valkyria Chronicle, unforgiveable) or a game that is too shallow (as see's like Shadow Run), then you find yourself asking, "What am I doing here?This wasn't what I wanted." 00:00:03:03If
